

Nutrition is a vital component of health care because a person's diet has a significant role in their overall health and wellbeing.

Explore the benefits of the RUSH MS in Clinical Nutrition program to gain critical knowledge on how nutrition impacts and improves health.

- Expanded Knowledge and Expertise: You will learn about advanced topics such as nutritional genomics, metabolism, and disease prevention, which will allow you to provide more comprehensive care for your patients.
- Improved Outcomes: With the knowledge and skills you gain from a master's degree, you will be better equipped to help your patients make informed decisions about their health and provide them with more personalized and effective care.

- Enhanced Career Opportunities: With a master's degree, you will be well-equipped to take on leadership roles in the field of dietetics, and you may be eligible for higher-paying positions that require advanced education.
- Professional Networking: Pursuing a master's degree in Clinical Nutrition will provide you with opportunities to network with other professionals in your field, which can help you stay up to date on the latest trends and research in the field.

The Master of Science in Clinical Nutrition program at RUSH University is only 30 credits and is fully online.

Learn more about the profession and the Master of Science in Clinical Nutrition Program at RUSH University by attending an information session.

Questions? Contact Dr. Sarah Peterson, program director or Shelley Jackson, senior admissions specialist.

